

Hiro:

I am very impressed, but who made this kind of rule and why your safari is very ethical?

Oscar:

There was a visionary by the name of Norman Carr. And he's respected and his vision was always respected as well as nature. So this is carried on, I think, the grand and national park. Norman Carr. The first walking safari in Africa was Norman Carr's idea. And he started off the first tour and then tourist came. He started to offer the walking safari or safari in south Luangwa national park. And He always had respect for nature and an animal. And through his vision, that is how the walking safari actually started in Africa.

Peo:

And He already started it quite long time ago. How long time was it ago?

Oscar:

1950 approximately.

Peo

60 years ago. Right? And nowadays, now recently, Kenya's government has said that we are using too many cars and too much pollution for global warming. So how can we reduce global warming, well, how can we avoid global warming, how can we reduce CO2, carbon dioxide. And it said Kenya government is now looking into, maybe we should walk more, you know.

But they already do that because of this visionary. Because they have vision in the south Luangwa. They are always one step ahead. They already had non global warming safaris. It's fantastic.

Oscar:

Norman's family are stabled at the Kapani lodge. Adrian Carr and his daughter as well.

Billy

Adrian, is the one we talking about the post card, is a son of Norman Carr.

Peo:

I would like to meet them one day.

Oscar:

Yeah, they are lovely people.

Peo:

Therefore they are much more worth to promote and I want to say thank you too, every opportunities for Oscar and Billy tell about this, because it will be. you know, I think, a wake-up call for me.

Oscar;

We would like to say thank you as well for giving us this opportunity to tell you about this.
